A meeting of the Tiverton and West Somerset Teachers' Association was held in the Art and Technical schools, Wellington, on Saturday. Mr. Knight (president of the Association) was unable to be present owing to the illness of his wife, and Mr. J. Rowe (vice-president) was voted to the chair. Miss Bicknell, of Sampford Arundell, was elected a member of the Association. A letter was read from Mr. Foxhall, of the Executive of the National Union of Teachers, stating that the attention of the Executive had been called to the practice which was apparently carried on of schools of unwieldly size being erected, and also to the practice of one teacher acting as the head of more than one department. The letter asked that the Association should communicate with the Executive if any such practices. It was generally accepted that the question of big schools did not refer to Somerset, where there were only sparse populations, but referred rather to the large centres. It was further stated that there had only been one group of schools under one teacher known in the district. Mr. W. Sydney Price, of Wellington, gave an exceedingly instructive lecture illustrated by lantern slides, entitled "Nature's Microscopic Marvels," and at the close he was heartily thanked for his able lecture. The members afterwards partook of tea together.
